Can you think of anyone else? These might be people from your family, our family, from work, from the neighbourhood, from some other organizations you belong to, or they might be someone else. You might have talked with them about the upcoming national election, local politicians or election, or issues that government deals with, such as the economy, the environment, immigration, or health care.

Please either input the names or indicate that you don't discuss politics with others

Earlier in this survey we provided you with a summary of an important political issue adapted from news coverage. This article was based on events that were reported on the BBC and other prominent international journalistic outlets at some point during the past 15-20 years. We did, however, omit reference to identifying information such as the countries involved, time period in question and details of specific legal cases. The purpose of this research was academic; the intention was not simply to take the issue out of context. Please lick the arrow to exit this survey.
